The Christmas Tree.

Charles Dickens, in one of his late productions, speaks thus of the "Christmas Tree:"

"Among the later toys hanging there, as idle often and less pure, be the images once associated with the sweet old Watts, the soft-sound music in the night, ever unalterable! Encircled by the social thoughts of Christmas time, still let the benignant figure of my childhood stand unchanged! In every cheerful image and suggestion that the season brings, may the bright star that rested above the poor roof be the star of all the Christian world! I know there are blank spaces on thy branches, where eyes that I have loved have shone and smiled; from which they are departed. But, far above, I see the raiser of the dead girl and the Widow's son; and God is good! If age be hiding for me in the unseen portion of thy downward growth, O may I, with a grey head, turn a child's heart to that figure yet, and a child's truthfulness and confidence!

Now the tree is decorated with bright merriment, and song, and cheerfulness. And they are welcome. Innocent and welcome be they ever held, beneath the branches of the Christmas tree, which cast no gloomy shadow But, as it sinks into the ground, I hear a whisper going through the leaves, 'This, in commemoration of the law of love and kindness, mercy and compassion. This, in remembrance of me!'"

"The custom of singing canticles at Christmas, called carols, is common in many parts of Europe. This is the practice of the Calabrian Minstrels, who descend from the mountains and visit Rome and Naples, a few days before Christmas, for the purpose. Preparatory to Christmas, the bells are rung at midnight, throughout England and the continent."

In a Christmas Festival Hymn, sings Heinrich:

"'Tis thou that crown'st my glittering hearth
With guiltlesse mirth.
And givest me Wassaile bowles to drink
Spiced to the brink.
Lord, 'tis thy plenty dropping hand
That soiles my land.
And givest me for my bushel sowne
Twice ten for one."

The Oregon Democrat says that it did not indorse the treasonable poetry published in that paper, entitled the "Battle of Manassas." There is no way in which the editor can legally or morally avoid the responsibility of that article without giving the name of its author. Will he do that?

The Democrat also says that it is not responsible for the threat that "blood should run in our streets." The editor did endorse the communication containing this threat.

A letter from New York, of 16th November, says, that five regiments raised in that city, were to leave for the South within two or three days—a glorious gathering of "mudsills," and there were more behind.

Three regiments of the New York Irish Brigade, Thomas F. Meagher, acting Brigadier, received, at the hands of Archbishop Hughes, a splendid set of colors.

The Daily Oregonian.

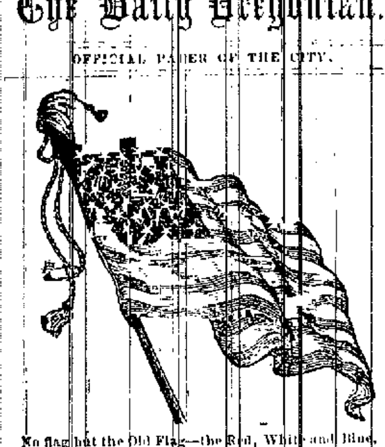
OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY.



No flag but the Old Flag—the Red, White and Blue,
With the stars of a Union unbroken and true!
Arise and defend it! ye sons of the brave,
Whose blood bought the banner your valor must save.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, DEC. 25, 1861.

The Last Eastern News.

We have given full accounts of the Eastern news received by the steamer, embracing St. Louis dates from Dec. 5th to Dec. 12th, inclusive. The news leads us to believe that the country is on the eve of great events. We have not supposed that Gen. McClellan was desirous of a battle on the Potomac; but that his policy was to keep a large rebel force in the neighborhood. In Kentucky, the Union troops were strong and confident, and a collision seems to be inevitable there. The expedition for the Lower Mississippi was expected to move soon. A reinforcement of twenty-five thousand men had arrived at Beaufort, S. C., which betokens warm work in that quarter. There are accounts that the Union troops have taken possession of New Orleans; but we are not certain it is so.—Charleston has been fired by the slaves, and a good portion of it burnt. This must be a terrible fact for the reflection of South Carolinians. There is no disposition to flinch from the prosecution of this war by our Government or people. It will be finished, and well finished.

John Bull seems to be disturbed by the taking from one of his vessels the rebels, Slidell and Mason. War is even threatened. We, however, suppose this has come from newspaper blusterers, and not from the Government. In the act complained of, we have only copied the practice and doctrines, often times repeated and set forth by John Bull, himself; and if he chooses to fight us, we shall no doubt have a busy time, more especially if Johnny Crapeau should take a hand in the melee.

John Bull has permitted the Nashville steamer to repair at Southampton, and to go out thence for the destruction of American commerce. The Mexican Government, anticipating difficulty with England, is disposed to avail itself of the same privileges to prey on English commerce, by fitting out ships of war in our harbors, that the English Government accord to Confederate ships. "What is sauce for the goose, is sauce for the gander," John Bull may learn in due time.

On the whole, we are well satisfied with our last Eastern news.

Our Mail Facilities.

The importance of the subject induces us to make some further remarks upon the necessity of increased mail facilities to the country east of us. The past year has fully demonstrated the fact that we have an extensive gold field, extending from John Day's, Powder and Salmon rivers, up into the British Possessions; and although prospecting has been carried on but to a limited extent, yet enough is known to satisfy us that there will be a large accession to our population in that section of the country, the coming season, variously estimated at from twenty to twenty-five thousand people; and in view of this state of things we are led to ask, What are our present mail facilities in that direction? To be sure we have a tri-weekly mail to the Dalles by river, and a weekly line thence by land to Walla Walla. (That mail route was extended to Colville, but as we have before stated, has been discontinued.) But who patronizes the mail from the Dalles to Walla Walla? We venture to say that not one letter in five hundred from this point goes to Walla Walla by mail; and so far as the mail route from the Dalles to Walla Walla is concerned, it is of very little practical benefit to the [illegible].

The mail facilities might answer for the thousand people (which we think would be a large estimate of the number of settlers in that whole upper country) when the present mail contracts were awarded, will hardly satisfy the wants of a community of twenty times that number of people—a fair estimate of the number of people that will be in the region spoken of within a year from this time. And as the present mail contracts expire in June, we see no good reason why, in the re-letting, that these people should not be provided with fair mail facilities. This is a matter in which all our citizens have an interest, both in this valley and in all regions east of us; and we ask, why should they not petition the Government that, under the new contracts, we be allowed a daily mail from Portland to the Dalles, and a tri-weekly mail thence to Walla Walla, (to be carried from Walla Walla to the latter place, thirty miles, by land?)

We have a daily overland mail from San Francisco to Portland, which accommodates well the people on the whole route; but under existing mail arrangements, letters and papers for the east of us, lay here, while they should be well on their way to their destination.

We have already referred to the necessity of mail routes, connecting with the Columbia river route, to the mines.

The increased mail facilities here claimed are of very great importance to Oregon, east and west. The subject should be brought to the attention of Government. This can be done, as already stated, by petitions, which should be put in circulation at all the points most interested. When filled with names, they should be sent to our Senator in Congress. We say to all interested, that this thing should be promptly done.

Funeral Obsequies of Col. Baker.

These took place in the city of San Francisco on the 11th instant. The Herald says that "never in the history of California has there been witnessed a civic and military display equal to that paid to the memory of Col. E. D. Baker." We need not report the great points in the character of the fallen Senator. The Hall was crowded and Montgomery street was densely lined with people. The funeral ceremonies at the Hall were performed by the Rt. Rev. Bishop Kip; the oration was pronounced by Hon. Edward Stanley; and the solemn and plaintive music of Mozart's Requiem was most impressively performed.

The most telling and affecting feature of the occasion was the appropriate and feeling address of Rev. T. Starr King, followed by an eloquent and beautiful prayer; which, although crowded as we are of space, we cannot forbear copying entire:

ADDRESS OF THE REV. T. STARR KING.

The story of our great friend's life has been eloquently told. We have borne him now to the home of the dead, to the Cemetery which, after fit services of prayer, he devoted in a tender and thrilling speech, to its hallowed purposes. In that address, he said: "Within these grounds public reverence and gratitude shall build the tombs of warriors and statesmen * * who have given all their lives and their best thoughts to their country." Could he forecast, seven years ago, any such fulfillment of those words as this hour reveals? He confessed the conviction before he went into the battle which bereaved us, that his last hour was near. Could any slight shadow of his destiny been thrown across his path, as he stood here when these grounds were dedicated, and looked over slopes unfurrowed then by the ploughshare of death?

His words were prophetic. Yes, warrior and statesman, wise in council, graceful and electric as few have been in speech, ardent and vigorous in debate, but nobler than for all these qualities by the devotion which prompted thee to give more than thy wisdom, more than thy energy and weight in the halls of senatorial discussion, more than the fervor of thy tongue and the fire of thy eagle eye in the great assemblies of the people—even the blood of thy [illegible] heart—when thy country called with a cry of peril—we receive thee with tears and pride. We find thee dearer than when thou camest to speak to us in the full tide of thy life and vigor. Thy wounds through which thy life was poured are not [illegible] mouths, but eloquent with the intense and perpetual appeal of thy soul. We receive thee to the reverence and gratitude," as we lay thee gently to thy sleep; and we pledge thee not only a monument that shall hold thy name, but a memorial in the hearts of a grateful people, so long as the Pacific moves in [illegible] resting place, and a [illegible] the heavens of the Republic, so long as the mountains shall feed the Oregon!

The poet tells us, in pathetic cadence, that

"The paths of glory lead but to the grave."

But this is true only in the superficial sense. [illegible] true that the ambition and the [illegible] [illegible] the dignities, [illegible] await the inevitable hour." But the path of true glory does not end in the grave. It passes through it to a larger [illegible] [illegible] Baker. A great nature is a seed. [illegible] a natural body; it is raised a spiritual body." [illegible] in this world as well as in another. Was Warren dead when he fell on the field of defeat, pierced through the brain, at the commencement of the Revolution, by a bullet that put the land in mourning? Not the monument that has been raised where his blood reddened the soil, granite though it be in a hundred courses, is a feeble witness of the permanence and influence of his spirit among the American people. He mounted into literature from the moment that he fell; he began to move the soul of a great community; and part of the principle and enthusiasm of Massachusetts to-day is due to his sacrifice, to the presence of his spirit as a power in the life of the State.

Did Montgomery lose his influence as a force in the Revolution because he died without victory, on its threshold, pierced with three wounds, before Quebec? Philadelphia was in tears for him, as it has been for our hero; his eulogies were uttered by the most eloquent tongues of America and Britain, and a thrill of his power beats in the volumes of our history, and runs through the onset of every Irish Brigade, beneath the American banner which he planted on Montreal.

Did Lawrence die when his breath expired in the defeat on the sea, after his exclamation—"Don't give up the ship!" What victorious captain in that naval war shed forth such power? His spirit stained and touched every flag on every frigate, to make its red more commanding and its stars flame brighter. It went abroad in songs, and every sailor felt him and feels him now as an inspiration.

God is giving us new heroes to be enthroned with those of the earlier struggles. Before our great victories come, He gives us, as in former years, names to rally for, and examples to inflame us with the old and unconquerable fire. Ellsworth, Lyon, Winthrop, Baker, our patriots who have fallen in ill-success, will hallow our new contest, and exert wider influence as [illegible] heroes than ever their regiments and battalions, while they shall ascend to a more tender honor in the nation's memory and gratitude.

And other avenues of service than those of the earth are opened for such as he whom we are waiting to lay in the tomb. "It is sown in dishonor, it is raised in glory," saith the Sacred Word. God has higher uses for such spirits. In the Father's house are many mansions; and Christ has prepared the place for all ranks of mortals for whom he died. The mysteries of the other world are not revealed. The principles of judgment, the tests of acceptance and of genius, knowledge, faith, shall be as nothing to humility, sacrifice, charity. But in the uses of charity the fiery tongue, the furnished mind, the unquailing heart, shall have ample opportunities, and ampler than here. Paul goes to an immense service still as an Apostle; Newton to reflect from grander heavens a vaster light. As we shut the door of the tomb of genius, let it be with gratitude to God for its splendor here, and with a hope for its future that swells our bosoms, though its outline be dim.

And let us not be tempted, in view of the sudden close of our gifted friend's career, in any sad and skeptical spirit, to say 'What shadows we are, and what shadows we pursue!' The soul is not a shadow. The body is. Genius is not a shadow. It is substance. Patriotism is not a shadow. It is light. Great purposes, and the spirit that counts death nothing in contrast with honor and the welfare of our country—these are the witnesses that man is not a passing vapor, but an immortal spirit.

Husband and father, brother and friend, Senator and soldier, genius and hero, we give thee, not to the grave and gloom—we give thee to God, to thy place in the country's heart, and to the great services that may await thee in the world of dawn beyond sunset, with tears, with affection, with gratitude, and with prayer."

Closing his remarks, the audience listened to and appeared to join with him in prayer.

After the services at the Hall, escorted by several companies of troops, the procession moved to the burial ground. During the procession, the solemn tolling of the bells, minute guns from the Alcatraz battery, and the Russian corvette, were fired. The last rites at the grave were performed by Rev. T. Starr King, and the three rounds were fired over the last resting place of the departed hero.

He sleeps alongside the lamented Broderick, the young Senator from the Pacific coast, whom he so eloquently eulogized—kindred spirits in death, they are not divided. Requiescat in pace.

Colonel Baker's Remains.

It is well known, we presume, to the people of Oregon, that a Committee of our citizens was appointed to proceed to San Francisco, and solicit of the friends of Col. Baker, his remains for final interment in this State. The Committee attended to their duty, and the following correspondence was the result. Though anxious that the remains of Colonel Baker should have their last resting place in Oregon, we feel bound to acquiesce in the wishes of his estimable widow in the case.

METROPOLITAN HOTEL, SAN FRANCISCO,
December 7, 1861.

MRS. COL. E. D. BAKER,—Dear Madam:—On behalf of the citizens of Oregon we come to request of you the privilege to take the remains of your husband to that land. Oregon's [illegible] [illegible] Government [illegible] the distinguished [illegible] [illegible] our people [illegible] with the deep [illegible] Our people await his coming to pay the last tribute of respect to the illustrious dead, due from a grateful people. Most sincerely do we hope you will grant our request. We await your reply.

With heartfelt sympathy we remain, as ever, your devoted friends.

W. H. RECTOR,
H. W. CORBETT,
S. E. MORTON, for
J. R. MOORE.
Committee.

SAN FRANCISCO, December 12, 1861.

GENTLEMEN:—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of the 7th inst., in which you so earnestly solicit on behalf of the State of Oregon, my consent that the remains of my lamented husband may be transferred to the capital of that State—the home of his adoption—for interment.

I have no words to express the gratitude which I feel toward the people of Oregon for the kind regard in which they hold his memory. It is in keeping with the wide confidence which they reposed in him while living; it is a continuation of the high honor they conferred on him when they made him their Senator.

I feel in the midst of the affliction which has befallen myself and family, the great force and justice you urge in favor of the removal of the remains to Oregon. I feel this the more keenly, having so fresh a remembrance of his own expressions of high regard for, and fervent gratitude to the people who had enabled him to attain his highest ambition. At the same time I can not be unmindful of the kindness and honor which the people of California have bestowed upon his memory, who for so many years was a citizen among them.

I am only desirous of pursuing such a course as will do justice to the feelings of the people of both States, and at once express the deep gratitude entertained by my children and myself toward them all. It would be a source of unspeakable regret were I to do otherwise.

I am waiting with anxiety to learn from those near friends in the East—to whom, it is reported, he confided his wishes—whether he anticipated the result which has befallen, and before going to the field of battle, expressed to them any desire, in such an event, in regard to his final resting place—a desire which, should it have been known, I should consider it my sacred duty to see fulfilled. This fact, together with private considerations, referring more distinctly to the sorrow and grief with which my children and myself are overshadowed, demand that I should defer giving a definite answer to your valued letter until a certain interval shall have elapsed.

I must therefore trespass upon your kindness so far as to ask that I may have further time for a consideration of your request, assuring you that I shall endeavor hereafter to be guided by a full and appreciative sense of what is due to the people of Oregon, who have always manifested so much kindness to my family, and still evince so much respect to the memory of my husband.

Very respectfully and truly yours,
MARY A. BAKER.

To Messrs. H. W. CORBETT, W. H. RECTOR and S. E. MORTON, Committee for the State of Oregon.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, DEC. 25, 1861.

The Last Eastern News.

We have given full accounts of the Eastern news received by the steamer, embracing St. Louis dates from Dec. 5th to Dec. 12th, inclusive. The news leads us to believe that the country is on the eve of great events. We have not supposed that Gen. McClellan was desirous of a battle on the Potomac; but that his policy was to keep a large rebel force in the neighborhood. In Kentucky, the Union troops were strong and confident, and a collision seems to be inevitable there. The expedition for the Lower Mississippi was expected to move soon. A reinforcement of twenty-five thousand men had arrived at Beaufort, S. C., which betokens warm work in that quarter. There are accounts that the Union troops have taken possession of New Orleans; but we are not certain it so.—Charleston has been fired by the slaves, and a good portion of it burnt. This must be a terrible fact for the reflection of South Carolinians. There is no disposition to flinch from the prosecution of this war by our Government or people. It will be finished, and well finished.

John Bull seems to be disturbed by the taking from one of his vessels the rebels, Slidell and Mason. War is even threatened. We, however, suppose this has come from newspaper blusterers, and not from the Government. In the act complained of, we have only copied the practice and doctrines, often times repeated and set forth by John Bull, himself; and if he chooses to fight us, we shall no doubt have a busy time, more especially if Johnny Crapeau should take a hand in the melee.

John Bull has permitted the Nashville steamer to repair at Southampton, and to go out thence for the destruction of American commerce. The Mexican Government, anticipating difficulty with England, is disposed to avail itself of the same privileges to prey on English commerce, by fitting out ships of war in our harbors, that the English Government accord to Confederate ships. "What is sauce for the goose, is sauce for the gander," John Bull may learn in due time.

On the whole, we are well satisfied with our last Eastern news.

Our Mail Facilities.

The importance of the subject induces us to make some further remarks upon the necessity of increased mail facilities to the country east of us. The past year has fully demonstrated the fact that we have an extensive gold field, extending from John Day's, Powder and Salmon rivers, up into the British Possessions; and although prospecting has been carried on but to a limited extent, yet enough is known to satisfy us that there will be a large accession to our population in that section of the country, the coming season, variously estimated at from twenty to twenty-five thousand people; and in view of this state of things we are led to ask, What are our present mail facilities in that direction? To be sure we have a tri-weekly mail to the Dalles by river, and a weekly line thence by land to Walla Walla. (That mail route was continued to Colville, but as we have before stated, has been discontinued.) But who patronizes the mail from the Dalles to Walla Walla? We venture to say that not one letter in five hundred from this point goes to Walla Walla by mail; and so far as the mail route from the Dalles to Walla Walla is concerned, it is of very little practical benefit to the community.

The mail facilities might answer for two thousand people (which we think would be a large estimate of the number of settlers in that whole upper country when the present mail contracts were awarded) will hardly satisfy the wants of a community of twenty times that number of people—a fair estimate of the number of people that will be in the region spoken of within a year from this time. And as the present mail contracts expire in June, we see no good reason why, in the re-letting, that these people should not be provided with fair mail facilities. This is a matter in which all our citizens have an interest both in this valley and in all regions east of us; and we ask, why should they not petition the Government that, under the new contracts we be allowed a daily mail from Portland to the Dalles, and a tri-weekly mail thence to Walla Walla, (to be carried from Walla Walla to the latter place, thirty miles, by land?)

We have a daily overland mail from San Francisco to Portland, which accommodates well the people on the whole route; but under existing mail arrangements, letters and papers for the east of us lay here while they should be well on their way to their destination.

We have already referred to the necessity of mail-routes, connecting with the Columbia river route, to the mines.

The increased mail facilities here claimed, are of very great importance to Oregon, east and west. The subject should be brought to the attention of Government. This can be done, as already stated, by petitions, which should be put in circulation at all the points most interested. When filled with names, they should be sent to our Senator in Congress. We say to all interested, that this thing should be promptly done.

Funeral Obsequies of Col. Baker.

These took place in the city of San Francisco on the 11th instant. The Herald says that "never in the history of California has there been witnessed a civic and military display equal to that paid to the memory of Col. E. D. Baker." We need not report the great points in the character of the fallen Senator. The Hall was crowded and Montgomery street was densely lined with people. The funeral ceremonies at the Hall were performed by the Rt. Rev. Bishop Kip; the oration was pronounced by Hon. Edward Stanley; and the solemn and plaintive music of Mozart's Requiem was most impressively performed.

The most telling and affecting feature of the occasion was the appropriate and feeling address of Rev. T. Starr King, followed by an eloquent and beautiful prayer; which, although crowded as we are of space, we cannot forbear copying entire:

ADDRESS OF THE REV. T. STARR KING.

The story of our great friend's life has been eloquently told. We have borne him now to the home of the dead, to the Cemetery which, after fit services of prayer, he devoted in a tender and thrilling speech, to its hallowed purposes. In that address he said: "Within these grounds public reverence and gratitude shall build the tombs of warriors and statesmen * * who have given all their lives and their last thoughts to their country." Could he forecast, seven years ago, any such fulfillment of those words as this hour reveals? He confessed the conviction before he went into the battle which bereaved us, that his last hour was near. Could any slight shadow of his destiny been thrown across his path, as he stood here when these grounds were dedicated, and looked over slopes unfurrowed then by the plowshare of death?

His words were prophetic. Yes, warrior and statesman, wise in council, graceful and electric as few have been in speech, ardent and vigorous in debate, but nobler than for all these qualities by the devotion which prompted thee to give more than thy wisdom, more than thy energy and weight in the hall of senatorial discussion, more than the fervor of thy tongue and the fire of thy eagle eye in the great assemblies of the people—even the blood of thy indomitable heart—when thy country called with a cry of peril—we receive thee with tears and pride. We find thee dearer than when thou camest to speak to us in the full tide of thy life and vigor. Thy wounds through which thy life was poured are not "dumb mouths," but eloquent with the intense and perpetual appeal of thy soul. We receive thee to "reverence and gratitude," as we lay thee gently to thy sleep; and we pledge to thee, not only a monument that shall hold thy name, but a memorial in the hearts of a grateful people, so long as the Pacific moans near thy resting place, and a fame equal among the heroes of the Republic, so long as the mountains shall feed the Oregon!

"The paths of glory lead but to the grave."

But this is true only in the superficial sense. It is true that the famous and the obscure, the devoted and the ignoble, "alike await the inevitable hour." But the path of true glory does not end in the grave. It passes through it to larger opportunities of service. Do not believe or feel that we are burying Edward Baker. A great nature is a seed. "It is sown a natural body; it is raised a spiritual body." It germinates thus in this world as well as in the other. Was Warren buried when he fell on the field of defeat, pierced through the brain, at the commencement of the Revolution, by a bullet that put the land in mourning? No, the monument that has been raised where his blood reddened the sod, granite though it be in a hundred courses, is a feeble witness of the permanence and influence of his spirit among the American people. He mounted into literature from the moment that he fell; he began to move the soul of a great community; and part of the principle and enthusiasm of Massachusetts to day is due to his sacrifice, to the presence of his spirit as a power in the life of the State.

Did Montgomery lose his influence as a force in the Revolution because he died without victory, on its threshold, pierced with three wounds, before Quebec? Philadelphia was in tears for him, as it has been for our hero; his eulogies were uttered by the most eloquent tongues of America and Britain, and a thrill of his power beats in the volumes of our history, and runs yet through the onset of every Irish Brigade, beneath the American banner, which he planted in Montreal.

Did Lawrence die when his breath expired in the defeat on the sea, after his exclamation, "Don't give up the ship!" What victorious captain in that naval war shed forth such power? His spirit stared and touched every flag on every frigate, to make its red more commanding and its stars flame brighter; it went abroad in songs, and every sailor felt him and feels him now as an inspiration.

God is giving us new heroes to be enthroned with those of the earlier struggles. Before our great victories come, He gives us, as in former years, names to rally for, and examples to inflame us with the old and unconquerable fire. Ellsworth, Lyon, Winthrop, Baker, our patriots who have fallen in ill-success, will hallow our new contest, and exert wider influence as spirit heroes than ever their regiments and battalions, while they shall ascend to a more tender honor in the nation's memory and gratitude.

And other avenues of service than those of the earth are opened for such as he whom we are waiting to lay in the tomb. "It is sown in dishonor, it is raised in glory," saith the Sacred Word. God has higher uses for such spirits. In the Father's house are many mansions; and Christ has prepared the place for all ranks of mortals for whom he died. The mysteries of the other world are not revealed. The principles of judgment, the tests of acceptance and of genius, knowledge, faith, shall be as nothing to humility, sacrifice, charity. But in the uses of charity the fiery tongue, the furnished mind, the unquailing heart, shall have ample opportunities, and ampler than here. Paul goes to an immense service still as an Apostle; Newton to reflect from grander heavens a vaster light. As we shut the door of the tomb of genius, let it be with gratitude to God for its splendor here, and with a hope for its future that swells our bosoms, though its outline be dim.

And let us not be tempted, in view of the sudden close of our gifted friend's career, in any sad and skeptical spirit, to say 'What shadows we are, and what shadows we pursue!' The soul is not a shadow. The body is. Genius is not a shadow. It is substance. Patriotism is not a shadow. It is light. Great purposes, and the spirit that counts death nothing in contrast with honor and the welfare of our country—these are the witnesses that man is not a passing vapor, but an immortal spirit.

Husband and father, brother and friend, Senator and soldier, genius and hero, we give thee, not to the grave and gloom—we give thee to God, to thy place in the country's heart, and to the great services that may await thee in the world of dawn beyond sunset, with tears, with affection, with gratitude, and with prayer."

Closing his remarks, the audience listened to and appeared to join with him in prayer.

After the services at the Hall, escorted by several companies of troops, the procession moved to the burial ground. During the procession, the solemn tolling of the bells, minute guns from the Alcatrez battery, and the Russian corvette, were fired. The last rites at the grave were performed by Rev. T. Starr King, and the three rounds were fired over the last resting place of the departed hero.

He sleeps alongside the lamented Broderick, the young Senator from the Pacific coast, whom he so eloquently eulogized—kindred spirits in death, they are not divided. Requiescat in pace.

Colonel Baker's Remains.

It is well known, we presume, to the people of Oregon, that a Committee of our citizens was appointed to proceed to San Francisco, and solicit of the friends of Col. Baker, his remains for final interment in this State. The Committee attended to their duty, and the following correspondence was the result. Though anxious that the remains of Colonel Baker should have their last resting place in Oregon, we feel bound to acquiesce in the wishes of his estimable widow in the case.

METROPOLITAN HOTEL, SAN FRANCISCO,
December 7, 1861.

MRS. COL. E. D. BAKER:—Dear Madame:—On behalf of the citizens of Oregon we come to request of you the privilege to take the remains of your lamented husband, Oregon's late and truly Senator, to his adopted State for interment. It appears peculiarly appropriate that he should be interred at the seat of Government, his late residence, there, where his professional abilities secured for him the distinguished position which he held, the highest in the gift of our people. He shed a bright lustre over our young State, and [illegible] with his fame. Not only are family and friends bowed in sorrow, but a nation is stricken with the deepest woe. Our people await his coming to pay the last tribute of respect to the illustrious dead, due from a grateful people. Most sincerely do we hope you will grant our request. We await your reply.

With heartfelt sympathy we remain, madam, your devoted friends.

W. H. RECTOR,
H. W. CORBETT,
S. E. MORTON, for
J. R. MOORE,
Committee.

SAN FRANCISCO, December 12, 1861.

GENTLEMEN:—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of the 7th inst., in which you so earnestly solicit on behalf of the State of Oregon, my consent that the remains of my lamented husband may be transferred to the capital of that State—the home of his adoption—for interment.

I have no words to express the gratitude which I feel toward the people of Oregon for the kind regard in which they hold his memory. It is in keeping with the wide confidence which they reposed in him while living; it is a continuation of the high honor they conferred on him when they made him their Senator.

I feel in the midst of the affliction which has befallen myself and family, the great force and justice you urge in favor of the removal of the remains to Oregon. I feel this the more keenly, having so fresh a remembrance of his own expressions of high regard for, and fervent gratitude to the people who had enabled him to attain his highest ambition. At the same time I can not be unmindful of the kindness and honor which the people of California have bestowed upon his memory, who for so many years was a citizen among them.

I am only desirous of pursuing such a course as will do justice to the feelings of the people of both States, and at once express the deep gratitude entertained by my children and myself toward them all. It would be a source of unspeakable regret were I to do otherwise.

I am waiting with anxiety to learn from those near friends in the East—to whom, it is reported, he confided his wishes—whether he anticipated the result which has befallen, and before going to the field of battle, expressed to them any desire, in such an event, in regard to his final resting place—a desire which, should it have been known, I should consider it my sacred duty to see fulfilled. This fact, together with private considerations, referring more distinctly to the sorrow and grief with which my children and myself are overshadowed, demand that I should defer giving a definite answer to your valued letter until a certain interval shall have elapsed.

I must therefore trespass upon your kindness so far as to ask that I may have further time for a consideration of your request, assuring you that I shall endeavor hereafter to be guided by a full and appreciative sense of what is due to the people of Oregon, who have always manifested so much kindness to my family, and still evince so much respect to the memory of my husband.

Very respectfully and truly yours,
MARY A. BAKER.

To Messrs. H. W. CORBETT, W. H. RECTOR and S. E. MORTON, Committee for the State of Oregon.

CITY.

MASONIC.—At a meeting of Harmony Lodge No. 12, A. F. & A. M., held on Monday evening, 23d inst., the following officers were elected: John McCracken W. M.; [illegible] H. Pearne S. W.; Albert G. Walling J. W.; S. M. Lyon T.; and Henry Law Secretary.

THE STEAMER BROTHER JONATHAN.—This vessel, now lying at [illegible] wharf, has just come off the [illegible] at Mare Island where she has been thoroughly overhauled and painted. She is considered one of the staunchest vessels on the coast. In another column she is advertised to sail for San Francisco via Victoria on Friday next. She is to take some troops aboard at San Juan Island for San Francisco, and for that reason she is not to return to this port after leaving Victoria.

SERVICES AT THE CATHOLIC CHURCH.—Christmas being the great feast of the Catholic Church, the customary services were held in this city at midnight. High Mass was celebrated by Rev. P. Mack[illegible], and an eloquent discourse delivered by Rev. M. O'Reilly. The Church was densely crowded and the services passed off satisfactorily.

FINED.—David Gulry was fined $10 and costs by the Recorder for violating City Ordinance No. 80, in teaming within the city limits without license.

SABBATH SCHOOL FESTIVAL.—The Episcopal Church on Second street was well filled last night with the children and teachers belonging to the Episcopal Sabbath school. The building was decorated with evergreens and a large Christmas tree was erected at the western end of the church, festooned with fruits, cakes and many other nice things in which children generally take delight.—The singing by the choir and a host of girls and boys was truly charming. May they live to participate in a hundred such festivals.

CHRISTMAS TREE.—The Sunday School of the Methodist E. Church had a pleasant time last night. A gigantic Christmas Tree was erected in front of the pulpit, literally covered with presents—candies, cakes, fruits, flowers, etc., etc. Smiling faces, pretty girls, social intercourse, happy reunions, and general good feeling, were the order of the evening. It will long be remembered by those who participated in the enjoyments of the occasion.

The Daily Oregonian will not be published to-morrow.

BALL TO NIGHT.—The Turners' ball comes off to-night at their hall. They have made preparations for a fine affair, and such it will undoubtedly be.

Coughs.—The sudden changes of our climate are sources of PULMONARY, BRONCHIAL and ASTHMATIC AFFECTIONS. Experience having proved that simple remedies often act speedily and certainly when taken in the early stages of the disease, recourse should at once be had to Brown's Bronchial Troches, or Lozenges, let the Cold, Cough, or Irritation of the Throat be ever so slight, as by this precaution a more serious attack may be effectually warded off. PUBLIC SPEAKERS and SINGERS will find them effectual for clearing and strengthening the voice. See advertisement.

Remarkable Instance of Medical Relief

Below we publish the certificates of three of the sufferers from the pangs of disease, who, having recovered their former health and impelled by gratitude, make known [illegible] and remedial agent and their statement, [illegible] authenticated by a Notary Public. The demands of [illegible] imperiously command their publicity, and we commend their perusal to the attention of all afflicted.

Certificate.—The undersigned desirous of [illegible] those who may be unfortunate enough to be [illegible] [illegible] where a permanent relief of their sufferings may be [illegible] feels it his duty to thus publicly express his most [illegible] gratitude to Dr. L. J. Czapkay, for the [illegible] recovery of his health. Borne down by the [illegible] [illegible] incident to the vicious practices of [illegible] [illegible] passion in youth depressed in body and mind, unable to perform even the most trifling duty imposed upon the [illegible] [illegible] of life. I sought the advice of many phy[illegible] [illegible] at first regarded my disease as of trifling im[illegible] [illegible] after a few weeks, and in several in[illegible] months, of their treatment, I found, to my conster[illegible] that instead of relief, my symptoms [illegible] [illegible] in their torture, and being told by [illegible] my disease being principally confined to the brain, [illegible] [illegible] of little consequence, I despaired of ever [illegible] my health, strength, and energy, and as a last resort, and with but a faint hope called upon Dr. Czapkay, who [illegible] examining my case prescribed some medicine which [illegible] [illegible] relieved me of the dull pain and dizziness in my head. Encouraged by the result, I resolved to place myself [illegible] under his care, and by a strict obedience [illegible] directions and advice, my head became clear, and my [illegible] the constant pain in my back and groins, the [illegible] of my limbs, the nervous reaction of my whole body [illegible] the slightest alarm or excitement, [illegible] forebodings, the self-distrust and want of confidence [illegible] incapability to study, and want of [illegible] [illegible] exciting and at times pleasurable dreams at night [illegible] involuntary discharges, have all disap[illegible] [illegible] in two months after, having [illegible] I felt as if inspired by a new life—[illegible] [illegible] ago I contemplated to end by my own hand. With the view to guard the unfortunate from falling [illegible] the snares of incompetent quacks, I deem it my duty to offer this testimony to the merit and skill of Dr. Czapkay, and recommend him to all who may stand in need of med[illegible] advice, being assured by my own experience that [illegible] [illegible] radical and permanent cure will be [illegible]

Dr. L. J. CZAPKAY San Francisco—Sir: I have used the [illegible] and do not think I shall need any [illegible] very well except that I have not fully [illegible] but soon will with the appetite I have. [illegible] three weeks, you may recollect, since I called [illegible] with the institution, as I thought, to die, and never thought you would be able to cure me [illegible] but thought you might be able to do something [illegible] pain in my back and head, and [illegible] that I would not get excited and [illegible] Now that you know what I expected, you may [illegible] satisfaction at my complete recovery from [illegible] [illegible] the removal of those sores and blotches [illegible] and the ulcers from my throat, and the [illegible] [illegible] which you said were principally the [illegible] I can hardly tell you which is the [illegible] my surprise for except not having fully [illegible] as well as any man can feel. [illegible] I send you twenty dollars over your charge and [illegible] If you think anybody will be [illegible] may put this letter in the newspapers. Be[illegible] [illegible] THOMAS HAYNES.

Thankfulness is the incentive to gratitude
